

Appian for Public Sector

RECRUITING

- Easily configurable workflows optimize the candidate journey
- Access information quickly to make the best hiring decisions
- Appian records converge case information in a single location
- Ensure security by controlling access to applicant information

Hiring choices are among the most important decisions that managers make. Without a focused effort on the people-side of transformation, even the best-planned implementation or the most cutting-edge technology can still fail.

Furthermore, whether your agency has an internal recruiting team or outsources to a third party, the process of finding, vetting, and selecting candidates can generate a lot of paperwork. Candidate recruiting and selection involves multiple steps, departments, forms and people. These paper-driven operations can result in inefficient processes and mishandled information.

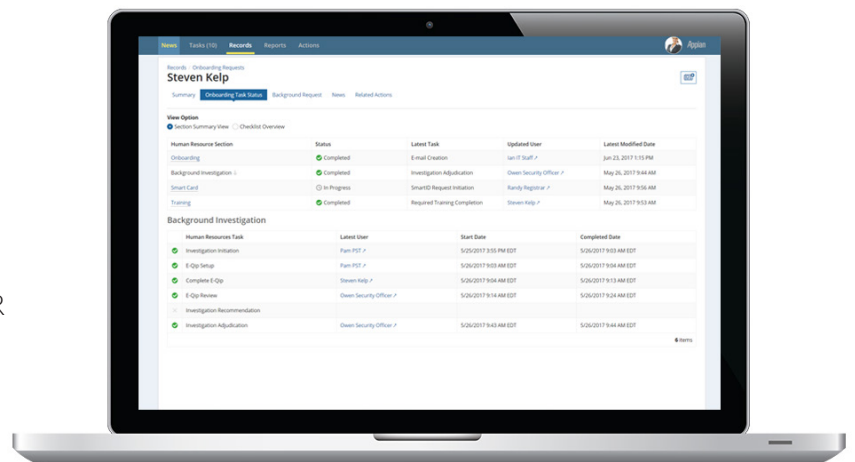

With Appian, you can free recruiting staff to spend their time finding and hiring the best candidates instead of doing paperwork, by automating the capture, storage and routing of applicant documents.

MEET THE CHALLENGE

The first step to an effective personnel recruiting process is having the right technology in place.

With Appian, agencies can:

- Reduce hiring paperwork and associated delays.
- Integrate process workflow data with existing HR systems for collaboration and transparency.
- Maintain information security and facilitate compliance.
